I am delighted to welcome you all to the beautiful Northwest and to what promises to be an inspiring, stimulating, and educational experience.

This year’s program addresses the challenges of individuals with IDD and mental health needs viewed through the lens of neurodiversity, a term used since the 1990’s to describe neurological variation, such as autism, ADHD, dyslexia, intellectual disabilities, and some mental health disabilities. The neurodiversity movement frames neurological variation as a natural part of the human experience and an authentic form of human diversity. Rather than framing cognitive disabilities as pathologies in need of ‘cure,’ the neurodiversity movement focuses on accommodation, inclusion, civil rights, and support.

We are excited to be offering outstanding workshop content featuring industry experts. The conference will highlight topics that support and respect individuals with IDD/MI, recognizing the complex combination of strengths and challenges persons with IDD/MI experience while looking at ways we can advocate for greater acceptance, understanding, and awareness. Exploring our work through the lens of neurodiversity will include discussions on improving communication, integrating technology for increased independence, overcoming trauma, and increasing collaboration amongst systems.

This year’s keynote lecture on Thursday, November 1, will be presented by Aij Jemalani, MD, who will speak about Tales from the Field: What We Can Learn from the People We Serve. The keynote lecture by Annette Estes, PhD, will be on Friday, November 2. Dr. Estes will speak about Brain Development and Autism Intervention: What We are Learning & Where We are Going.

Additionally, we are featuring: opportunities for young professionals to gather; a forum for our current trainers, certifiers, and accreditors to network together; a poster exhibit and silent auction; and several Breakfast Consultations designed for family members as well as professionals, which include topics that address the concerns and perspectives of families. Topics include The Science of Hope; How Families Keep Their Hope Alive, Mental Health in Autism, System Collaboration on Crisis Prevention, and Making Sense of Polypharmacy.

An enormous amount of work goes into hosting our conferences and I want to express my great appreciation for the following people, without whom this conference would not be possible: Conference Committee Chairs Jana Dreyzehner, Tony Thomas, and John and Traci Schneider; Family Voices Committee Chairs Julia Pierce and Sue Gamache; NADD Board of Directors; Lisa Christie and our NADD staff as well as the many committee members and volunteers. Thank you!!

This year’s conference is located at the Motif Seattle Hotel in downtown Seattle, Washington. With beautiful views of the city and steps from everything in downtown Seattle, the location is a perfect backdrop against which to explore the sights and sounds of Seattle. Located on 5th Avenue between Pike and Union, the Motif Seattle Hotel is close to shopping, the waterfront, and is within walking distance of transportation by rail to the airport.

Our annual conference is a highlight of my year and a wonderful opportunity to share insights, learn together and be in community with others dedicated to advocacy and to advancing research, knowledge, and best practices in the IDD/MI dual diagnosis community.

We thank each of you for your support in joining us and I wish you all a wonderful conference experience. May you be inspired, enjoy each other’s company, learn, and gain new insights.

DANCING IN THE RAIN: EMBRACING LIFE THROUGH THE PRISM OF NEURODIVERSITY
"'Neurodiversity' is a term used since the 1990's to describe neurological variation, such as autism, ADHD, dyslexia, intellectual disabilities, and some mental health disabilities. The neurodiversity movement, led by autistic self-advocates and people with a wide range of other cognitive disabilities, frames neurological variation as a natural part of the human experience and an authentic form of human diversity. Rather than framing cognitive disabilities as pathologies in need of ‘cure,’ the neurodiversity movement focuses on accommodation, inclusion, civil rights, and support.”
